Jessica Dubé and partner Bryce Davison began their love affairs with figure skating at the ages of four and three respectively. The Canadian duo teamed up in 2003 and competed simultaneously in Pairs and Singles at the national level up until 2007. They placed tenth at the 2006 Winter Olympic Games in Turin, Italy and together, they are the 2007 and 2009 Canadian national champions, the 2008 World bronze medalists and the 2009 Four Continents silver medalists. The duo won their first national crown in Nova Scotia at the 2007 Canadian Championships, yielding comparisons to Jamie Sale and David Pelletier in the process (with whom they had worked with just prior to Christmas). The 2006/2007 competitive season was a rough start for the pair due to a scary on-ice accident during the free skate competition at the Four Continents Figure Skating Championships in Colorado Springs, when during a side-by-side camel spin, Davison's skate connected with Dubé's face. Dubé was removed from the ice on a backboard and underwent plastic surgery that very night. Jessica made a speedy recovery and within months the determined couple returned to the rink together for competition.

Dubé and Davison are both students and consider one of their greatest achievements to be their journey together as pair skaters. Jessica notes a personal success being the ability to speak French and English fluently, while for Bryce, his linguistic success is a grasp of French to the extent of conducting interviews comfortably. Additionally, both Jessica and Bryce hope to one day stand on the Olympic podium.
